

Tony Brown To Speak In Lee Chapel

Tony Brown, host and executive producer of the weekly television series, "Tony Brown's Journal," will speak at Washington & Lee University on Thursday, Oct. 22, at 8 p.m. in Lee Chapel.

Brown's appearance at Washington & Lee is sponsored by the Student Association for Black Unity (SABU). "Tony Brown's Journal" is the longest-running, nationally syndicated black affairs program on television. Brown joined "Black Journal," then on public television, in 1970 and took the program to commercial television in 1972.

Formerly host and moderator for several Detroit-area television shows, Brown is the founding dean of Howard University's School of Communications. A native of Charleston, W.Va., he holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State University in Detroit.

Brown has been selected one of the "Top 50 National Black Newsmakers" by the National Newspaper Publishers Association and one of the "100 Most Influential Black Americans" by Ebony magazine. He is president of the National Association of Black Media Producers, writes a nationally syndicated newspaper column and produces "Tony Brown at Daybreak," a lead-in for the "Today" show in Washington, D.C. In 1973, he won the Communicator for Freedom Award from Operation PUSH.
